

I.EQUALCARE GUIDELINES FOR AUTHORS' RIGHTS

As an author publishing an article with i.equalcare, you will be guaranteed fair and accredited distribution of your work to our international audience, and rights to promote and use your article for personal sharing, presentations, further research, and additional publication. These rights are elaborated below:

Posting on Social Media or Personal Websites

You may share all versions of your article online, provided that you include a link to your article page on the i.equalcare website. This also applies to article sharing platforms like ResearchGate.

Sharing Your Article with Students or Colleagues

You can distribute your article in any format (print or electronic) for personal sharing. You can use your article freely in any presentations or webinars, which includes sharing copies with the audience and using it in slides or posters.

Republishing or Using Excerpts from Your Article

You have the right to republish and adapt your article for further research in any book, papers, or other scholarly works that you are an author of. However, please note that other journals may have regulations against prior publication, and that posting of your paper online may be an issue for anonymous/blind peer review systems.

COPYRIGHT

All articles published with i.equalcare are open access, meaning they will be available to the public at no cost. Articles will be distributed under the terms of Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License, permitting use and distribution in any medium with proper citation of the original work.
